

Harbor College Challenges San Diego to Walking Race

Keeping a watchful eye on events in the White House, Harbor College's ASO Council decided to challenge San Diego City College to a 50-mile walking race via U. S. Highway 101, destination: San Clemente.

The challenge issued by Harbor student body president Bob Sanford was accepted Friday morning by San Diego. The race is scheduled for Washington's Birthday starting at 5 in the morning.

THE HARBOR walkers traveling south from their campus and the San Diego students traveling north over the Highway 101 obstacle course are scheduled to meet at San Clemente State Park, the halfway point between the two schools.

The Harbor delegation will probably consist of 15 to 20 at the outset with everyone hoping to reach Newport Beach before pulling a Pierre Salinger.

Displaying no prejudice, the walkers are inviting women students along on the jaunt. Accompanying the brave and hopefully hardy bunch of tibia testers will be a veritable wagon train of first aid supplies and spare Harbor sweatshirts.

Estimated arrival time is 5 p.m. Friday which means that the optimistic collegians are planning to cover the ground at better than a four-mile-per-hour pace.

HARBOR walkers are planning a practice hike over the Palos Verdes hills. Signed up for the San Diego walkathon are two of the younger Harbor teachers, Robert Billings, music instructor, and Fred Martin, drama instructor.
